A pale little lad in a west bound train glanced wistfully toward a seat where a mother and her merry children were eating lunch. The tears gathered in his eyes, though he tried to keep them back. A passenger came and stood beside him.

"What's the trouble?" he asked. "Have you no lunch?"

"What's the trouble," he asked. Have you no lunch?"
"Yes; I have a little left, and I'm not so awful hungry."
"What is it, then? Tell me; perhaps I can help you."

TITLE TO A BIG TRACT DEPENDS UPON WHAT CREEK HE MEANT.

Armed Guards on Watch - Mountaineers Think They Are Entitled to Their Homes, and Are Ready to Fight to Reep Them.

George Washington, the Father of his country, left a bloody heritage to his children when he surveyed Southwestern Virginia. A few thousand acres, more or less, or a mistake in calculations as to distances between creeks and mountain ranges was a matter of small moment then, but it is of very great importance now.

Could Washington, through some medium, explain whether he meant Huff's creek or Island creek when he said Huff's creek, says a Huntington dispatch to the New York Herald, both names being known then, as now, in such a way that persons would give credence to the communication, several lives might

The question as to whether or not there will be trouble resolves itself into one of whether or not the Morris grant claimants intend to complain of this vio-

"It's—it's so lonely, and there's such a lot of them over there, and—and they've got their mother."

The young man glanced at the black band on the boy's hat. "Ah," he said gently, "and you have lost yours?"

"Yes, and I am going to my uncle; but I've never seen him. A kind lady, the doctor's wife, who put up my lunch, huns this card to my neck. She told me to show it to the ladies on the ear and they would be kind to me; but I didn't show it to any one yet. You may read it if you like."

The young man raised the card and read the name and address of the boy. Below were the words:

"And whosoever shall give drink unto one of these little ones, a cup of cold water only in the name of a disciple, verily I say unto you, he shall in no wise lose his reward."

The reader brushed his hand across his eyes and was silent for a moment. Then, "I'll come black very soon," he said, and made his way to the mother and her children.

FINNISH HONESTY.

In No Other Country Are Life and Property So Safe as in Finland.

From the New York Advertiser.

It might be rash perhaps to assert that among the criteria of a nation's civilization security of life and property deserve a prominent place, but it is certainty quite safe to affirm that in no other European state, not even in Sweden and Norway, is life and property so secure as in Finland.

The confident, matter-of-fact way in which truths, parcels and perhapted streets of cities without any one to look after them could secretion of nourishment for the child, and strengthens the mother if taken after confinement.

As a powerful, invigorating, restorative tonic, "Favorite Prescription" improves digestion and nutrition thereby building up solid, wholesome flesh, and increasing the strength of the whole system. As a soothing and strengthening nervine, "Favorite Prescription" is unequaled and is invaluable in allaying and subduing nervous excitability, irritability, nervous exhaustion, nervous prostration, neutralia, hysteria, spasms, chorea, or St. Vitus's dance, and other distressing, nervous symptoms commonly attendant upon functional and organic disease of the womb. It induces refreshing sleep and relieves mental anxiety and despondency.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a scientific medicine, carefully compounded by the Chief Consulting Physician to the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, at Buffalo, N.Y., who for thirty years has made diseases of women a specialty. It is carefully adapted to woman's delicate organization, is purely vegetable in its composition and perfectly harmless in its effects in any condition of the system. For morning stekness, or nausea, due to pregnancy, weak stomach, indigestion, dyspepsia and kindred symptoms, its use will prove very beneficial. Taken in moderate doses during pregnancy it prevents miscarriage.
